Maybe that is because what the IDOE is currently doing is sufficient for continuation of implementation of principle 1, but that sentiment is not clear either. One recent concern that I heard about was the data collection from schools for the 100% Responsiveness, Awareness, Support, and Engagement goals. There is a lot of information about what the IDOE will do and then one paragraph about monitoring of local LEAs. As Indiana law does not give the IDOE the authority to monitor standards implementation, I would suggest revising to reflect either a voluntary participation or another way to measure the IDOE's work. Additionally, many of the pieces of evidence included in the new list are not requirements under Indiana law. Do the online "communities of practice" replicate Learning Connection? How is the IDOE integrating the two (or in turn, moving away from Learning Connection)?
